Thursday of an elderly man who was electrocuted in a homemade chair.

The body of Clarence Hudson, 60, a department store janitor, was found propped in a chair in his apartment.

Clothed in his hand was a ground wire from a homemade electrical apparatus. Hudson's bare feet rested on a wet towel. Another wet towel was around his head. Pasted to each temple was a 25-cent piece and from each coin extended a wire to a transformer. Police said the transformer was used to increase the voltage from a wall outlet.

base against the American government for sending Powers over Russia. Powers himself was pictured as a young man from a poor background who happened to land a well-paying job, $30,000 a year.

The Moscow radio was depicting Powers as a tool of the U. S. money interests.

In the very course of trying Powers the U. S. is, besides making anti-American propaganda world-wide, were also trying to create good propaganda for themselves by the way they handled the trial.

Preston Grover, Associated Press reporter covering the trial, said of the way Powers was being handled by the prosecutor: "Speculators who have watched American courts could hardly consider it a brow-beating type."

This is in contrast to the recollection the rest of the world has about Soviet justice, at least as it used to be. The purge trials of fellow Russians by Stalin in the 1930s were among the most infamous in history.

Nixon, in an article for the weekly London American, called for a new era of creative U. S. British leadership to meet Soviet challenges.

"The first need is not for vast sums of money or for formal programs," he wrote. "But there is a need, right now, for imagination and energy and initiative."

Master War Plan Filed for Nation

By C. YATES-MCDANIEL

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new central agency will draw up a strategic war master plan stating which U. S. weapons will be used to hit specific targets behind the Iron Curtain if nuclear war should come.

Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. Wednesday named Gen. Thomas S. Power director of the planning agency to be located at Omaha in conjunction with the Strategic Air Command headquarters. Power will continue to serve as SAC commander and will have an admiral as deputy for the new agency.

A staff of about 40 top specialists will develop a long-range target program that will be under constant review. The plan is expected to be ready by December for approval of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

In announcing the new agency, Gates emphasized that the current strategic target plan is a good one. But he noted it is based largely on SAC's manned bomber force capabilities.

Formation of the new agency is expected to quell a long-smoldering argument between the Air Force and the Navy. Some Air Force quarters have been advocating a separate and over-all strategic command to control long-range weapons of all the services. The Navy opposed this concept.

THE STORY: In spite of warnings, Brett Fasken has taken sides against his sister in a range war. Now he rides to help rancher Trone and his sister Lola who have been outlawed by the cattlemen for alleged rustling.

CHAPTER XI
Lola Trone with a long-handled pot in one hand stuck her head out the door just as Rhode Island Red came up onto the porch. Startled surprise froze her there. Then her mouth pulled down and there was contempt in her look. "What's the matter with you lost?"

It threw Red a little off balance and while he was trying to find a suitable reply she said, pointing: "Hobbed O's off there — off behind that lemon-colored hill. Climb back on your horse and start pulling down tracks."

Red sneered, then grinned boldly. She wasn't fooling him any. He suddenly laughed at the gone — still look of her, at the blood pounding into her face, at her quick turn.

She drew back as he started toward her, the show of fright in her eyes bringing up the sap in him, shearing off the last thin hampering of caution. He'd waited a long while for a chance like this. Chuckling deep in his throat he spring after her.

Her eyes were like holes burned through a board with hot iron. In a continuous motion she let go the pot, ducked under his outstretched hand and brought up a rifle that was inside the room. Red got hold of the barrel, swearing, twisting it away from him, savagely wrenching it out of her hands. He flung it into the yard and, thoroughly aroused, grabbed as she tried, too late, to spin away from him.

He caught a fistful of yellow hair and yanked her around and slammed her into the wall. She struck back at him, frantic. He cuffed her hard across the face. She reeled into the table and the table went over and he caught her before she could regain her balance. She tried to get at his eyes. He grabbed the front of her dress and ripped it.

Across the room someone yelled and Red, shocked cold sober, saw Trone, puff-faced, coming out of a bedroom.

Trone, by the looks, had been hitting a bottle. As though in confirmation one of his empty hands came uncertainly up to clutch at the jamb, steadying him there while his bloodshot eyes, increasingly ugly, fastened on Red and started, bear clumsy, across the room.

DOROTHY DIX

in their struggle for the gun. Not until his hand clutched down on the back of Red's neck were they aware of him, and then only indirectly. Red's knees began to fold. His fingers let go of the pistol. His sudden release, the almost instant change in stress and tension, staggered the girl's precarious balance and Red's weight, coming down across her back, capsized her. She fell sprawling, Red on top of her. Then his smothering weight was jerked away and, twisting over, she saw Brett Fasken half dragging half carrying the man through the door.

She claved up onto her feet and, trying to cover herself, stumbled over to Trone. That was where Fasken found her when he came back into the house.

Shook still blurred the lumpy angles of her face and her eyes, too big, were nearly unfocused. Yet despite these things she had command of herself. With the torn dress squeezed high up she said as though nothing in the world could be quite that important: "Will you help me to get him to bed?"

Brett peered at her out of a face still, unaltered. "You all right?" he said, voice flat with repression.

Color came into her face and her blue eyes fled away from him. "My bro—"

"He ain't going to oreak it that's what you're scared of. Get a pan, some hot water—put plenty of salt in it. Get hold of some whisky. Something to tie around him."

Giving her something to do pulled her out of it.

Brett unbuttoned and pulled Trone's bloody shirt, baring the wound. It was in the extreme right side of his chest, low down. Still bleeding it looked ugly but he thought it unlikely to have punctured anything vital, though it was entirely possible Trone might have a cracked rib. Brett followed the rib around with his hand and found where the bullet had come out.

Running into that table leg just as Red fired had probably saved the man's life; he certainly hadn't been hit where intended; he could keep down infection; he'd be up and around in three or four days. It was that crack on the head he had got when he fell which had robbed Trone of consciousness. Luck again.

Entertained

Mr. and Mrs. Reed Cannon and Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey Phillips entertained the following guests with a Buffet dinner at their home on Wednesday evening, August 17, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Gamble, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. McFadden, Mr. and Mrs. Willie C. Harper, Prentiss McFadden, Adolf McFadden, Benjamin Bradley of Detroit, Mich., Leroy, Odie, Brunson, Beltram, and Wanda Ballard of Cleveland, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. William Lake and Mr. and Mrs. Arnet Harris of St. Louis, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. James Brandon of Milwaukee, Wis.; Mr. and Mrs. Dittosha-Pool and Aron Pool of Chicago, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Tyus of Hollbronn, Germany; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Buchanan of Little Rock, Johnnie Grace and Wilson Hunt of Camden, Ark.

A number of other guests of the city were present.

The Dandle Dmunt is supposed to have been bred to its whimsical proportions and appearance and rat-conformation, size and temperament by a mythical man of the name—though some say he was a flesh and blood sporting dandle. The Norwich terrier is often referred to as the Jones terrier for the man who did so much to foster it.

In the toy group the King Charles and Prince Charles spaniels, which differ primarily in color, bear the names of the royalty which fancied them.

The large majority of breed names indicate the place of origin of the dogs. The Irish have a terrier, water spaniel, setter and wolfhound. The Scots have a terrier and deerhound; the Welsh, a Springer spaniel, a terrier, and two types of corgies. Many British breeds bear area names, such as the Sussex spaniel, Airedale, Lakeland, West Highland White and Manchester.

Germany prefixes the names of its shorthaired, longhaired and wirehaired pointers after their native land.

DOGS NAMED AFTER PEOPLE AND AREAS BY JOE STETSON

Dog Editor, Field & Stream

What's in a name? This question brings to mind the instances in which breed names indicate the kind of dog, some which give no hint whatsoever—and a few which are completely misleading.

The thought, however, is the breeds which are identified by the names of persons.

In the sporting group the Gordon setter bears the name of the Duke of Gordon, who contributed greatly to the propagation of good working setters of predominantly black and tan coloring. Llewelyn and Lavarack, though they lend their names to strains of English setters and not to separate breeds, are remembered for their contributions, as are the types they bred.

Plott, Redbone and Walker are breeds of hounds named after the men who developed them. July, Trigg and Walker are strains of foxhounds.

In the working group the Doberman Pinscher is named for the man who developed the breed in order to provide guard dogs of agility and intelligence as a security measure.

Whosoever Will may come to Church may come to God...

IF A

WRONG?

Have Faith in yourself, your fellow man,
your country, your church.
Whenever you and I doubt either God or man, we would do well to think of Jesus.

Life becomes a radiant thing for people of Faith. Faith can over- come the most miserable circumstances... overcome despair. The universe opens its heart to eyes of faith; closed doors swing ajar when faithful steps approach; loving spirits smile their welcome to trustworthy souls;
latent powers blossom in the presence of fidelity. God waits to shower His blessings on men who can be trusted... MEN OF FAITH.
